

Food stamp funds used to equip Walker TV studio

CHICAGO (AP) — Aides to Gov. Daniel Walker used thousands of dollars earmarked for the state food stamp program to equip a color television studio to promote the Walker administration, the Chicago Daily News reported today.

The News said in its weekend editions that thousands more were diverted from the Department of Transportation and Mental Health over two years to fund the Illinois Information Service, which operates the studio.

The studio produces television interviews and announcements featuring Walker and his appointees. These taped television programs are then distributed to stations around the state. Similar services are available for radio stations.

State records and legislative documents show $200,000 was spent on setting of a television center described in one Mental Health Department purchase order as "a small color studio that will generate productions of professional quality."

The Illinois Information Service has been a focus of controversy for years. Nominally set up to provide the news media and the public with information about all branches of state government, it has, instead, furnished favorable publicity for incumbent governors and their appointees.

The IIS is headed by Jim Dunn, a leading media consultant for Democratic office seekers around the nation. Besides Walker, his clients have included the late U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York, former Ohio Gov. John Gilligan, U.S. Sen. John Glenn of Ohio and one-time presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger in his unsuccessful U.S. Senate race in California.

The News said the Transportation Department paid $116,196 for the bulk of the television equipment, which fills three rooms on the third floor of the old State Waterways Building adjacent to the State house.

Mental Health was tapped for at least $83,448 and Public Aid at least $10,500 from its food stamp program, the News said.

Walker reached into these departments to fund the IIS after the General Assembly slashed its appropriation, which had been around $400,000 annually, claiming its character was too political. State agencies were ordered to take IIS aboard their payrolls and make funds available for continued operation of the media service.

The News reported that agency administrators questioned about the expenditures said they acted on orders from Walker's office in making the purchases.

"They (information officials) told us what they wanted and we bought it," one official said. "The governor's office told us to."

Norton Kay, Walker press secretary, defended the actions as "valid."

Speaking of the IIS, he said: "It is a legitimate service to the media and there are a lot of stations that can't afford access to Springfield like the Chicago stations."

First Egyptian head to visit

Sadat seeks assurance on peace effort

CAIRO (AP) — President Anwar Sadat, leader of the Arab world's most populous country, flies to Washington today to become the first Egyptian head of state to make a formal visit to the United States.

Sadat is seeking assurances from President Ford that American peace efforts will continue in the Middle East and that Egypt will receive a big economic and military aid package.

Without mentioning the Soviets by name, Sadat said the would-be coup leaders now in jail "met daily with the ambassador of a foreign nation who preferred the no-war, no-peace situation to further their own interests in the Middle East. That is my problem with them to this day."

Former pro-Soviet Vice President Aly Sabry led the abortive 1971 coup.

Sadat said the role of the foreign power was not mentioned at the plotters' trial for fear "of jeopardizing Egypt's national security." The Soviets supplied all of Egypt's weapons at the time.

Sadat called his order expelling Soviet advisors in 1972 "the most dangerous decision I made in my life." He said he made the decision for two reasons:

"It was a perfect camouflage for my intent to go to war, because by expelling them the world believed I would never dare to fight Israel."

And "it also won respect for the Egyptian soldier after the October 1973 war because Israel had always claimed our soldiers were not capable of fighting or using modern weapons. We showed them the contrary."

The Egyptian leader has signed arms deals with England and France for aircraft, tanks and helicopters in an effort to reduce his dependence on the Soviet Union for military support. Sadat would like a squadron of U.S. F5 fighters and defensive antitank missiles. The F5 jets would be no match for the F15s and F16s America will provide Israel.

Sadat seeks reassurances that the United States will work for a disengagement agreement between Israel and Syria on the Golan Heights front, similar to the Sinai agreement mediated between Israel and Egypt by U.S. Secretary of State.

The Egyptian-Israeli agreement brought charges from other Arab nations that Egypt had dropped out of the Arab effort against Israel, and Sadat said Ford had agreed to work out a similar Syrian-Israeli agreement.

Sadat also seeks promises that the United States will double last year's $350 million in direct aid and wheat, and increase efforts to get more grants and subsidies for his financially strapped nation from Japan and European Common Market countries.

Egypt now owes other nations $11 billion, and its balance of payments deficit is approaching $3 billion.

The doctors also reported Franco suffered lung complications.

The 11 attending physicians reported earlier that Franco suffered his second coronary insufficiency on Friday. His condition became serious Tuesday with inflammation of heart valves.

Spain, meanwhile, waited for what seemed a certain transfer of power and the end of Franco's 36 years of rule. Politicians, former cabinet ministers, ex-ambassadors, journalists and top government leaders huddled around Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, 37, Franco's choice six years ago to succeed him as chief of state and Spain's first king since 1931.

The prince was reported drawn but calm, waiting, an aide said, for the inevitable.

The terse medical bulletins have contrasted with generally optimistic reports from Franco's aides.

Franco, according to his medical team, was improved at 2 p.m. on Friday. But four hours later the doctors reported Franco's coronary system was stricken for the second time. A high government official discounted suggestions the medical reports had been unclear.

Information Minister Leon Herrera said the government and the prince were ready to take over temporarily, if necessary. But he shied away from comment on other possibilities — automatic succession by the prince if Franco dies, or a constitutional declaration that Franco no longer was physically able to carry on.

Reports from within the government of Premier Carlos Arias Navarro indicated the policy would be to wait and see if Franco survived before beginning the complicated process to have him declared incapable of continuing.

Officials said in case of Franco's death, a three-day national mourning period would be observed ahead of a state funeral to allow world leaders time to reach Spain to attend the funeral.

Succession, under the Spanish constitution, must pass to the prince within eight days. There is no coronation. But formal installation requires the prince to be sworn in before the Spanish parliament.

Reports of a possible behind-the-scenes power struggle, particularly by those closest to Franco who want to keep their influence, could not be confirmed.

Turkey under political attack in assassinations

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkey's foreign minister has declared that his country is "under politically motivated attack" following the second assassination of a top Turkish diplomat within three days.

Two gunmen fired at point-blank range Friday into the limousine carrying the Turkish ambassador to Paris, killing him and his chauffeur. On Wednesday, three men shot and killed Turkey's envoy to Austria as he sat in his Vienna office.

A number of political organizations claimed responsibility for the killings, but none of the gunmen has been apprehended.

Turkish leaders refrained from publicly accusing any group, but Ihsan Sabry Caglayangil said the "chain of events" leading to the murders "indicates without a doubt that Turkey is under a politically motivated attack."

Sources close to the military said Turkey's 40,000 occupation troops on Cyprus were put on alert, an indication Turkish officials believe the assassins could be Greeks or Greek Cypriots seeking vengeance for Turkey's invasion of the Mediterranean island last year.

The government issued a statement after an all-night cabinet session urging the nation to remain calm. It said measures were being taken to protect Turkish diplomats abroad.

"Every necessary measure is being taken to clear up the conspiracies behind the assassinations and to expose and punish the murderers," the statement said.

Police in Istanbul dispersed hundreds of angry demonstrators who marched under a heavy rain shouting slogans against Armenians, who form one of Turkey's ethnic minorities, and against Greeks.

Greece and Turkey have been quarreling over Cyprus for years. Turkish troops invaded the north half of Cyprus in July 1974 following a short-lived coup by the Greek-led Cypriot national guard against President Makarios. They still occupy 40 per cent of the island.

Paris police, meanwhile, checked into anonymous telephone calls which said Ambassador Ismail Erez and his chauffeur had been murdered by Greek Cypriots or the Armenian Liberation Army or leftist Turkish terrorists.

Witnesses said the gunmen fired at Erez's limousine in broad daylight as it slowed to make the turn from a bridge over the Seine River onto the Quai Kennedy in the chic 16th district.

One dead in early morning accident

An accident on Rock Island Blacktop early this morning, in which a car plowed through a group of people standing on the highway, left one man dead and another in guarded condition at KSB Hospital.

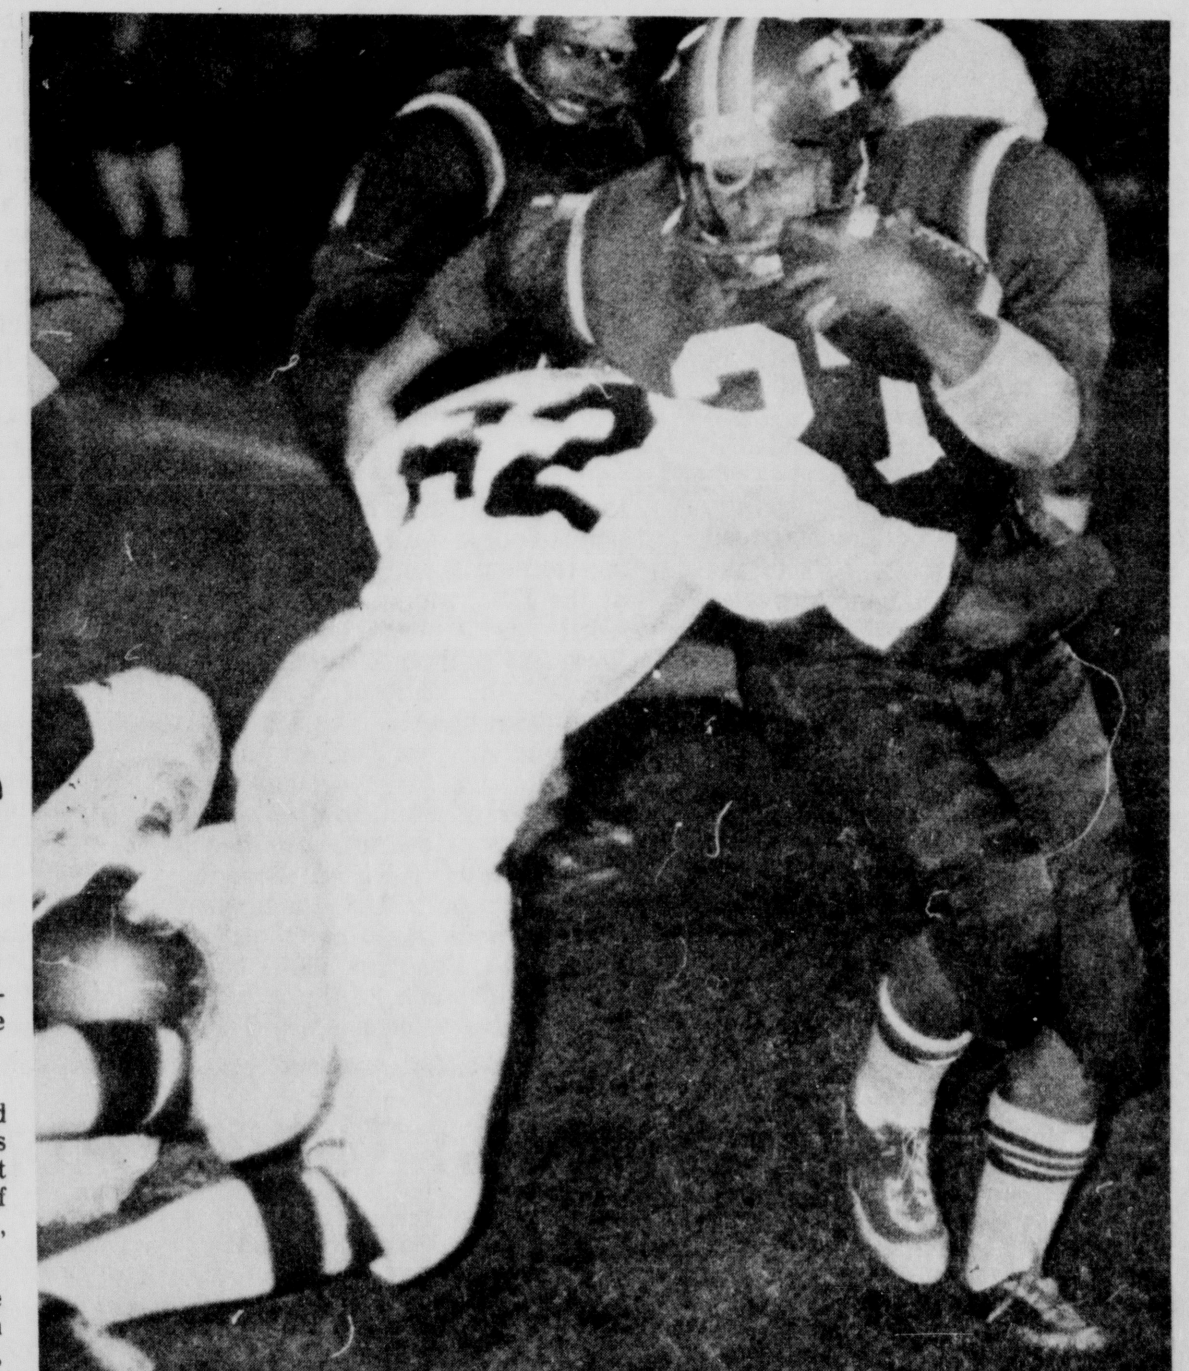

Carl J. Schauer, 25, Rt. 3, Amboy, was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. James S. Fleming, 23, Polo, was injured as he was struck by a car driven by Lewis T. Howell, 51, Sterling. Howell was driving west on Rock Island Blacktop when he came upon a group of men one-half mile west of the CB&Q railroad-track crossing near Nelson. According to police a scuffle was in progress on the highway at the time of the occurrence. The details of the accident remain under investigation. A coroner's inquest will be held, according to Richard Schilling, deputy coroner.

Schauer was born May 29, 1950, in Amboy, the son of John and Katherine (Fowler) Schauer, and was employed as a surveyor at Shador and Lohr Engineers.

He was preceded in death by his parents. Survivors include two brothers, William, Amboy, and Thomas, Camp Pendleton, Calif.; four sisters, Mrs. Dennis (Caroline) Dunphy, Ellisville; Mrs. John (Sandra) McCoy, Colorado Springs, Colo.; Mrs. Robert (Nancy) Johnson, Chicago, Mass.; and Janice Schauer, Dixon; grandparents Mr. and Mrs. William Fowler Sr., Amboy; and foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Fowler Jr., Lee Center.

Funeral services are tentatively scheduled for Monday at 2:30 p.m. at Mihm-Jones Funeral Home, Amboy, with the Rev. Roy Comstock officiating. Burial will be in Woodside Cemetery, Lee Center. Visitation will be Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. at the funeral home.

Senate committee probes possible imprisonment of 10 Navy fliers

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A private detective and a former American prisoner in a Russian labor camp have stirred the interest of the Senate intelligence committee in at least eight American Navy fliers who may have been prisoners in the Soviet Union for the past 25 years.

An intelligence committee staff aide in Washington said Friday the panel has the Navy fliers' case "under close scrutiny." Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, committee chairman, confirmed earlier this month that an investigation is under way into the fliers' fate.

Ten fliers were reportedly shot down over the Baltic Sea near the Soviet coast on April 8, 1950, and all 10 were officially listed as dead a year later.

But John Noble of Muncy, Pa., and Grand Rapids detective Theodore R. Grevers believe at least eight of the 10 may still be alive.

Grevers said Friday he believes the fliers were on a U.S. spy mission. In another interview Friday night, Noble said he believes the government may have suppressed information about the fliers.

Grevers became interested in the case three years ago when he was introduced to Noble, who spent 9½ years in a Siberian camp at Vorkuta. Noble was the son of a German native who immigrated to the United States. Noble accompanied his father back to East Germany in 1938.

They were arrested in 1945 by the Russians. His father was released in 1952. Noble gained his freedom amid nationwide publicity three years later after intervention by President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Noble said his interest in the fliers was rekindled after Grevers started working on the case in 1973. A friend of Grevers notified the Senate committee about the fliers last month, and Grevers says Church forced the Navy to declassify the file on the fliers this month.

Noble said State Department officials told him when he was first released in 1955 that one of the subjects they wished he would not talk about publicly was Americans being held in Russia.

A Yugoslav first mentioned the Navy fliers to Noble in 1950, saying eight of the 10 were alive. A Ukrainian prisoner told Noble four years later just before his release that they were still alive.

When Noble mentioned the Navy fliers in his book, "I Was a Slave in Russia," he said some government officials told him they felt he was being irresponsible.

Noble said a Navy intelligence officer told him the day he was returned to the United States in January 1955 that the Navy had aerial photographs of a Russian ship alongside the wreckage of the plane in the Baltic Sea.

"They said they suspected that because the plane was floating, the impact could not have been so great that all of them were killed," said Noble, now an insurance executive.

Noble said he wants to revive the whole question of American captives in Russia. Asked why, he replied, "Because of detente I'm concerned that we might be carried away and the men over there might be totally forgotten. There seems to be an attitude that for the sake of peace, let's forget these things."

Reds' method of winning

The communist method of winning the United States is to induce the gradual surrender of the Federal government, piece by piece to various international organizations. The United Nations is in the lead today. After they have conquered your government then the communists step in with their control. Communism is a conspiracy to enslave all mankind, willing to use any means to achieve its end.

The United States government is by far the most powerful force in promoting the growth of the communist rulers all over the world.

Senator Barry Goldwater said that all branches of the United States government were infiltrated by communists. Nine senators' offices and many committees are infiltrated.

Goldwater got the spying information from Vice President Rockefeller, whose CIA Commission uncovered the facts, but it was not included in the final report. Goldwater asked why it was absent from the report. Rockefeller answered, "I can only print what I was allowed." Is he such a pure, helpless Vice President. Surely you desire a more honest man in this important position.

Your Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has appointed numerous communists to high public office. The conservative citizens do not seem to know what to do about it.

Just last week the United Nations gave $165 million to the developing countries with the largest share going to Cuba to help Castro. One fourth of this money came from the United States taxpayers, passed on by your senators and representatives.

New York City and Washington have close links with Russia. If you do not want to become the miserable slaves, the same as the Russian people, then it will be necessary to change the type of President and congressmen you now have. It can be done if enough voters desire men of character who will work for sensible laws after they get elected. A good character will not be thinking and scheming on getting re-elected. He will stay in Washington tending to business. This applies to your senators and representatives. The ones you now have want your vote, but they are not interested in your welfare.

Budget cut, cut pols' throats?

By DON OAKLEY

Reaction to President Ford's tax proposal—challenge might be a better word—seems to have been as unfavorable in the hustings as on Capitol Hill.

The President proposed making the current income tax cut permanent and adding another one to it to the tune of $28 billion in all—providing, that is, that Congress cuts federal spending by a like amount. This would mean holding the fiscal 1977 federal budget to $395 billion.

Horrified commentators immediately pointed out that this would mean paring away at such things as social security and food stamps. But the really interesting thing about so much of the opposition reaction is that it is based, not on arguments that a hold-down on federal spending is unwise or unnecessary or impractical, but on the assumption that "the people wouldn't stand for it."

Typical of press comment was the flat charge that President Ford knew even before he made it that his proposal had no chance. Because Congress faces an election next year, few members would dare chop billions out of the budget. The result would be "electoral suicide."

Whatever this kind of statement says about the character of the typical congressman, it is more revealing in what it implies, about the character of the American voter.

Congressmen (as well as most other lesser elected officeholders) are routinely pilloried and despised for being mere "political animals" who will do anything—or nothing—to keep their offices.

Yet when it comes to a case where Congress is challenged to do something not immediately popular, it is taken for granted by some that the electoral revenge of the people will be certain and merciless.

We can't have it both ways. If congressmen are gutless, spineless political animals, the voters who reward them for that are somewhat less than admirable, too.

Shriver claims Kennedy legacy

WASHINGTON (LENS)— What is loosely called the northern tier of industrial states stretches from New England to the Mississippi River: nine states with about half of the American electorate and more than half the manufacturing, bank assets, personal incomes and state and local budgets of the country. Any presidential candidate needs them, a Democratic candidate especially, as the experiences of Hubert Humphrey in 1968 and of George McGovern in 1972 demonstrated.

Among the nine open aspirants to the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, none is more aware that these states must be lured back into the Democratic column than Sargent Shriver, the eighth candidate to announce his intentions. Shriver made his announcement on Sept. 20; the ninth, Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania, on Sept. 25.

Shriver has some peculiar advantages and disadvantages in his quest. Since the northern tier contains a preponderance of America's Roman Catholics, he comes on the scene with a claim on their support; not only is he a Catholic himself but he is married to the former Eunice Kennedy, a bona fide member of America's leading Catholic family. Shriver, in announcing his candidacy, was not coy about his Kennedy connection. He said it was his intention to "claim that legacy."

Political professionals are wondering, however, whether the legacy is transferable, even to a brother-in-law. In addition, Shriver, who is 59, has no political "power base" outside his marital connections. He worked during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations in Washington and lives in Maryland, but aside from an occasional testing of the waters has taken no great part in Maryland politics. Even if he had, as one leading Democrat put it: "If you've only got Maryland, what have you got?"

Shriver, therefore, is trying to recreate a power base in his former home city, Chicago, where he was head of the board of education for five years in the late 1950s and also manager of the late Joseph Kennedy's huge office-shop complex, the Merchandise Mart.

But his current associations in Chicago are largely connected with charitable works in which he still maintains an interest. Thus, when he brought a Boeing 727 full of Chicago supporters (the largest out-of-town contingent to come) for his announcement ceremonies in Washington, the list was notably short of allies of the mayor, Richard Daley, whose blessing Shriver needs and has been soliciting.

Daley, however, has been denying for the past eight months what Shriver has been privately hinting at: that the mayor supports a Shriver candidacy. Indeed, Daley has been urging the Illinois Democratic senator, Adlai Stevenson, to declare his own candidacy, not so much with the intention of getting Stevenson nominated as to send to the national party convention an Illinois delegation free to cast its weight where it (or Daley?) chooses. But the Kennedy touch may yet win Daley over.

Although Shriver's campaign committee is replete with family members, including his sisters and the wives of John, Robert and Edward Kennedy, it is questionable how much real help they can give. In 1972, when Shriver was first considering a career in national politics, he telephoned his brother-in-law, the senator from Massachusetts, to ask how "the family" would feel about his seeking the presidency or the vice presidency (which he did, as McGovern's second running-mate).

Friends say that Sen. Edward Kennedy replied that since the assassination of Robert Kennedy in 1968, "There is no more family. There is just me and a bunch of women and children."

Dealing with 'Big Brother' at home

WASHINGTON (LENS)— "The list is endless" said President Ford at the dedication of the new law school building at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif. He was speaking indignantly about the mountain of files on individual citizens kept, quite legitimately, by agencies of the federal government and the "relentless invasion" of privacy which they represent.

The files range from those on the Rosenbergs, executed 18 years ago for giving atomic secrets to the Russians, to those of the Export-Import Bank on applications for garage space.

Now the agencies are compelled to let the public know what files they keep and hundreds of civil servants have been busy for months compiling the lists. There are said to be at least 8,000 "record systems," perhaps many more, made possible by the computer revolution and containing 92 billion pages of records.

Congress tried to pry these open in 1967 by passing the Freedom of Information Act, but it proved to contain too many loopholes and possibilities for delay and obstruction. Last year Congress adopted amendments, known as the Privacy Act, which came into force on September 27. These give people the right to see the files kept on them, to challenge the information and demand its correction if it is inaccurate.

But there are still exempt areas such as records kept by the Central Intelligence Agency, law enforcement agencies and the Secret Service. Whether the Rosenbergs' sons will ever see their parents' records is doubtful.

Curiously, in view of Ford's anguish over the big brotherhood of the bureaucracy, the amendments were passed over his veto. But he was acting on the advice of the federal agencies. He himself, when vice president, had helped to forward the bill. Besides giving people access to their files, the act lays down rules for the collection and use of the information they contain. It also sets up the Privacy Protection Study Commission, which will concentrate on invasions of the privacy of individuals in the private sector.

Voice of the people

Criticizes UNICEF

While hurrying out of our local grocery store recently, I couldn't help but notice a poster on the bulletin board which stated in effect, that "Everybody is helping UNICEF." Well, I am not, and before anyone accuses me of being indifferent to the needs of the world's hungry children, I would like to point out why.

UNICEF renders no direct services. The supplies and food it collects are given to the government of the country in need, and that government is supposed to distribute the supplies as it sees fit. There is no guarantee that the supplies will reach those most in need of them. It has been charged that in Communist countries, the supplies do not get to the needy. For instance, in 1962, Msgr. Edward J. Goebel, Milwaukee archdiocesan superintendent of schools, replied to the question of why the Milwaukee schools did not participate in the UNICEF trick-or-treat program as follows: "Our opposition to the UNICEF organization was based on the protest of several of our former Catholic army chaplains who maintain UNICEF proceeds were not contributed to youth in need, but rather that they were taken up by the Communists in the (Communist-controlled) countries."

This was 12 years ago. Have things changed? I think not. Two weeks ago, the Chicago Tribune published a series on world hunger. On Oct. 14, 1974, the Tribune article stated that 900,000 metric tons of relief supplies had been shipped to Africa. The nation dominating the most of course, was the U.S. But, people were dying for want of these supplies. They were unable to get them "... because of bureaucratic bungling by the United Nations and by donor nations ... Many more people didn't get the food because their own governments, among the poorest and worst administered in the world, could not handle the supplies—sometimes because of lack of facilities, sometimes because of corruption." Many people perished in Africa simply because the Food and Agricultural Organization arm of the UN, through bureaucratic bickering with the drought-stricken nations, delayed for three months shipments of grain.

UNICEF insists that the money donated to them is used to feed and otherwise help destitute children. Yet, UNICEF money has been diverted to other causes. For instance, $10 million earmarked for UNICEF was loaned to the Secretary General of the UN to finance UN military action in Katanga in 1961. Barron's magazine pointed out in the June 29, 1970, issue that the $40 million expansion of the UN headquarters in New York was to be paid for as follows: $25 million to be appropriated by the General Assembly, $10 million diverted from the UN development program originally destined to help poor countries, and $5 million from UNICEF.

Millions of dollars have been poured into UNICEF but according to the report "U.S. Participation in the U.N., Report by the President to Congress, 1967," only "... five per cent of the world's children have been helped by it seems unbelievable that for the past 27 years, the United States has spent more than $400,000 per day to support the United Nations. Yet, we still have wars, political unrest, and starving people. People lay dying for want of food in the streets of India while that nation's government builds bombs and missiles. Yet, the United Nations says nothing.

It is particularly ironic that American churches should support the United Nations and UNICEF. In 1909 Lenin stated that "Marxism is materialism ... it is ... relentlessly hostile to religion." Yet, in April of 1970, former UN Secretary General U-Thant admitted that the United Nations reflects the ideals of Nicolai Lenin. Thant said openly that Lenin's "... ideals of peace and peaceful co-existence ... are in line with the aims of the UN charter." If this is the case, we may expect to see the same peaceful co-existence here in America, that we saw in the streets of Budapest, Hungary in 1956, and in Czechoslovakia in 1968.

How can anyone willingly give to UNICEF under these circumstances?

Respectfully submitted, Janet Beck

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The above comments were printed in this column about one year ago and were resubmitted this week for publication by Mrs. Ethel Mensch, Rt. 1, Mrs. Beck, formerly of Franklin Grove and now living near Albany, Wis., has given permission to republish the letter.)

Better weather forecasting

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)— President Ford and Congress are overlooking major payoffs in dollar savings, energy conservation and increased food and mineral production that might be realized through rapid development of specialized space data gathering systems.

A study by the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences notes that space systems could immeasurably improve weather forecasts and make important reductions in the $500 million a year weather-caused cargo and shipping losses.

Space-based navigation could so improve routing that the U.S. shipping fleet could save appreciable amounts of the $450 million now spent each year for fuel in trans-Atlantic services alone.

An estimated $8 billion plus a year of time could be saved by instituting a worldwide agricultural survey using satellites, aircraft and ground-based systems—the savings coming from improved output, distribution and lower costs.

Space-based remote sensing, added to conventional data collection, could save a significant part of the $1.2 billion the current national inventory of water resources is expected to cost.

Only space monitoring can provide an accurate, cost-feasible ongoing checkup on air and water pollution and the shift of concentrations from one point to another on a sufficiently wide basis to be of value. Without satellites, it is difficult indeed to measure the effectiveness of area pollution control systems.

Without an appropriate vigorous satellite program it will be impossible to accumulate data in time to determine whether certain aerosol sprays are depleting the ozone layer and endangering our future health.

Space surveys are no substitute for prospecting. But they can, by mapping geological faults and other features, put the finger on hitherto unsuspected targets of opportunity for those seeking petroleum, metal ores and other minerals.

Example—A large-scale mosaic, made from satellite data has revealed previously unrecognized details of an east-west fault associated with the Colorado mineral belt, opening new exploration possibilities.

Satellite warning systems provide the only feasible possibility for assessment of danger sufficiently early to cope with a variety of serious floods and storms.

Satellite-provided data on rain and snowfall, snow cover and the rate of snow melting, are essential for the efficient operation of hydroelectric power plants and conservation of water supplies.

With these necessities staring them in the face, Mr. Ford and Congress have moved at a laggard's pace.

It is true the Landsat series of satellites, calculated to aid in the development of earth resources, is being expanded. But only after a major fight that threatened to kill off most practical aspects of the program, and, for a period, condemned the project to movement at a snail's pace.

Though the situation is better today, size and scope of Landsat and allied programs needed to find the best approaches to the problems mentioned above is far from adequate if we are seriously concerned with energy, minerals and food supplies.

Going to a restaurant is risky' Julia Child: one serious sniffer

By IRA BERKOW

Julia Child is some dish herself. The renowned French Chef is a red-haired six-footer, robust and cheery. She is 63 years old and obviously has learned to savor life. When she gets warmed up on the subject of good food, her eyes sometimes slowly close — the better to picture the morsel.

And she is at once as elegant as medallions de porc sautes a la creme, and as unpretentious as goose ragout.

Mrs. Child, who was born in California and learned to cook while living in France, now lives in Boston. Recently she spoke with an interviewer who candidly does not cook, who had not seen her famous television shows, "The French Chef," and who hadn't read her latest book, "From Julia Child's Kitchen," nor her three acclaimed French cookbooks.

The interviewer justified this visit, however, by admitting he is always on the prowl for a juicy story, as well as a good restaurant.

How, he asked her, does one ferret out a joint with delectable cuisine?

"Going to a restaurant is risky business," she said. "If you are used to good eating at home, then a restaurant meal will rarely be a gustatory thrill.

"And I am not very hopeful for the survival of fine restaurants. So many of them now serve frozen food, even those with long-standing reputations for good food. And good help is getting harder to come by.

"If I am in an unfamiliar town, I will rely on the recommendation of a trusted source. I don't normally follow what magazines and newspapers say about restaurants because they are too often tied up with the advertising.

"And then often reading the so-called food experts and columnists is worthless. I don't know how they got their jobs. Perhaps it is like the saying about government bureaucracy — 'slots and bodies.'"

Julia Child says that she will sniff out a restaurant. She isn't kidding. She is a serious sniffer.

"My first criterion is my nose," she said. "I step into a new restaurant and smell. If I smell cheap fat cooking, or burnt margarine or cake mixes with imitation vanilla or greasy salad dressing, or anything equally loathsome, I exit.

"But I love the smell of good butter cooking, the aroma of shallots and the reduction of white wine for the thickening of sauces, the appetizing scents of a nice wine vinegar and oil."

Cleanliness is also a major factor. White table cloths are one thing; so is the tidiness and soothing demeanor of waiters and waitresses.

"The great French chef Escoffier maintained a quiet, disciplined restaurant," she said. "He wanted no one running around with knives. And he insisted that his help dress neatly. 'Take pride in your profession,' he instructed."

And the decor of a restaurant? "Not kitschy," she said. Plastic flowers, in other words, are suspect.

Generally, Julia Child will order very simply in an unfamiliar restaurant. "Nothing with sauces," she said. "Who knows what awful slop they'll put in their stuffed crepe. Unless some exotic dish smells especially good, I'll get broiled chicken or broiled fish. I normally ask the waiter or maitre d' what is fresh."

A restaurant with a limited menu might be safer than one that reads like an encyclopedia, because the food has a better chance of not being cooked ahead.

She is least sanguine about getting fresh vegetables, which she believes restaurants generally ignore because they take too long to prepare.

Rich desserts are usually bypassed reluctantly by her, to maintain her trimness. She favors, however, cheeses and "fresh fruit — when ripe."

She believes that Chinese restaurants are on the whole better than any other restaurants in America because Chinese restaurants cook with fresh vegetables and little fat. However, she disdains Szechuan cooking, "the new fad," which is simply peppers added and inauthentic Chinese cuisine.

Italian restaurants too often drown their food in tomato sauce, she said.

She once was asked to try out a McDonald's. "I found the hamburger of good quality, the potatoes and pickles fine, the ketchup tasty and the bun a little mushy but acceptable," she said.

And airplane food? "I hate soft, mushy steaks and limp broccoli and dehydrated mashed potatoes and gravy out of a can. When I fly," she said, "I bring my own sandwiches."

With a 2-2 break in diamonds or a 3-3 break in clubs six diamonds is a cinch. Actually, if both suits break South will make seven.

The spade lead gave South an extra chance and he made it by falling into a spade-heart squeeze against West.

Of course, good players don't fall into squeezes. They tend to play in such manner that if all else fails a squeeze may develop.

Dummy's jack of spades forced East's ace at trick one. South ruffed, entered dummy with a trump, led a club to the ace, a second diamond to dummy, a second club to the king. Then he tried to ruff a club, but East over-ruffed and forced South with a spade. South ruffed a club with dummy's last trump, came back to his hand with the king of hearts, and cashed his last trump and last club.

The last club squeezed West. He had to unguard his queen-jack of hearts to hold on to the king of spades. The queen of spades was discarded from dummy and the last two tricks were won by the ace and 10 of hearts.

Would South have made the hand if East had failed to over-ruff? Yes, he would. He would draw trumps, concede a club and wind up with the same squeeze.

Couple must be desperate for friends

place the kids are always underfoot making undue demands on their parents. It seems as though we are in the way.

Last Saturday we arrived at 7:30 p.m. We thought surely the kids would have been fed already so we could have an adult-type evening. Well, the children were in the bathtub. At 8:15 we all sat down to eat. The kids jabbered the whole time and there was no adult conversation.

After dinner the hostess put the little darlings to bed and proceeded to haul out her ironing board. She then lugged a basket of clothes from the back hall and commenced to press the week's laundry.

"I'm a little behind," she explained. "I hope you don't mind if I iron while we visit." I felt insulted. My husband says I'm "sensitive." What do you say?

— Miffed In Ohio

Dear Miffed: I say your husband has the hide of an alligator if he didn't get the message. You aren't considered guests, you're just a couple of schnooks who help cut down the boredom for those clods. You must be pretty desperate for friends to put up with them.

Dear Ann: I can't say this to my daughter. She'd think it was corny. I'd be embarrassed. Please tell her for me.

My darling daughter (or son):

Ever since you were a baby, our knowing where you were meant you were safe. You grew from being safe in your room, house, yard, block, neighborhood, to the whole world. Still, knowing you are safe is our major concern.

Remember when you were little and came home from school and I wasn't there? You called all the phone numbers you knew. When I finally came home you said in your most grown-up tone, "Where have you been?" You weren't meddling, you were frightened. When you didn't know where I was your security was threatened.

I don't mean to be nosy. On the contrary, I want to give you as much freedom as possible. But the only way I can do it is if I know where you are and when you'll be home.

My responsibility for you will end one day. Hopefully, my insecurity about you will also be gone, and all that remains will be confidence and love. But the only way that can happen is if you help me. Asking where you are going and when you'll be home is mother-talk. It really means, "I love you, and I hope you'll be safe." Your answer, when translated from child-talk means one of two things to me: "I don't care how you feel," or "I love you, too."—Love, Mom

Dear Mom: You've expressed the thoughts of millions of parents today, and I thank you.

McCoy-Hochstein vows

St. Patrick's Catholic Church was the setting for the nuptial service that united Miss Kathleen McCoy and Steven Hochstein Sept. 20. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McCoy, Dixon. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hochstein, Ashton.

The Rev. William Jaffe of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Woodstock, officiated at the nuptial while Maureen Madden, Milwaukee, Wis., played the guitar and sang.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride selected an A-line gown of white polyester satin and sata peau, styled with bands of embroidered lace accenting the front of her skirt. She wore an embroidered lace crown with fingertip veil and carried a cascade of white pompons, yellow roses and ivy. Her gift from the groom was a cross necklace.

Serving as her sister's maid of honor was Miss Eileen McCoy, Dixon, who wore an A-line organza gown in an autumn print over yellow polyester satin. She carried a bouquet of autumn-colored chrysanthemums and baby's breath with yellow ribbon.

Miss Eileen Madden, Crystal Lake; Miss Mary Brechon and Mrs. Marella Kitson, Dixon, were bridesmaids. They wore identically styled gowns of autumn print over orange polyester satin. Their bouquets were the same as the maid of honor's but with orange ribbons.

Bruce Miller, Ashton, was best man. Lt. Steve Shaulis, New River, N.C.; Patrick Hochstein, Morrison, brother of the groom, and Thomas Kitson, Dixon, served as groomsmen. The guests were seated by Robert Cheeseman, Ashton, and Bill Lawson, Rockford.

Little Miss Cindy Morris, Dixon, participated as flower girl, and her dress matched the gowns worn by the other attendants. She carried a basket of chrysanthemum petals. Master Marc Miller was the ring-bearer.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Elks Club, where Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCoy, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, Woodstock, served as hosts. A buffet supper was served.

Miss Mary McCoy, and Mrs. Patty Williams, cousins of the bride, opened and displayed wedding gifts. Mrs. Jeannette Buckholz, Arlington Heights, and Mrs. Janet Wolf, cousins of the bride, poured coffee and punch, while Mrs. Connie Miller served cake.

Since their honeymoon to Fontana, Wis., the newlyweds have been making their home at 610 Peoria Ave., Dixon.

The new Mrs. Hochstein is a graduate of Newman Central Catholic High School and the Sauk Valley College practical nursing program.

Mr. Hochstein graduated from Ashton High School and attended Rockford and Sauk Valley Colleges. He is presently employed at Crest Foods, Ashton.

Kimes married for the second time

ASHTON— Dianna Johnson Kime was married to her husband, Mark Kime, for the second time recently.

An Airman First Class, Mr. Kime was stationed in Japan with the Air Force when his fiancée, Dianna, flew to Japan with her wedding gown to marry him the first time.

The couple was denied a church wedding and were married instead by the American Consul to Japan in Sappora, dressed in their blue jeans.

After spending their honeymoon at the Tachikawa Air Force Base, they travelled to Misawa, Japan and from there returned to the United States.

After arriving in Ashton on leave, the newlyweds were married again in the Ashton United Methodist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Johnson Sr., Rochelle, and Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Kime, Ashton.

The Rev. David Frain, pastor of the church, officiated during the evening nuptial while Mrs. Ernest Eich provided music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a traditional floor-length gown, designed with a lace front and high neckline.

Serving as her cousin's matron of honor was Mrs. Karen Grimm. She wore a short-sleeved lavender gown with a ruffled hem and white lace bib. She carried a nosegay of pastel daisies.

Bridesmaids were Miss Julie Best, Miss Cindy Manning and Sherrie Fields, all of Rochelle. Their gowns were identical to the matron of honor's.

Best man was Robert Vaupel, Dixon, while Mike Burke, Gary Kime and Don Ross, Ashton, served as groomsmen. Guests were seated by Ray Kramer and James Johnson, Rochelle.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Fellowship Hall of the church, with Mrs. Janet Kramer, sister of the groom, Mrs. Pat Nicoloff and Mrs. Shirley Fields, sisters of the bride, and Miss Madonna Fields, niece of the bride, assisting.

Mrs. Kime is a 1974 graduate of Rochelle High School. Mr. Kime graduated from Ashton High School and is stationed at Scott Air Force Base.

The couple is residing in O'Fallon.

Nuclear technology falls behind schedule

CHICAGO (AP) — Development of the breeder reactor and other nuclear technology is behind schedule, the head of the American Nuclear Society says.

But, Melvin Feldman said in a recent interview, the problems are not serious enough to stifle the role of nuclear power in meeting the nation's future energy needs.

The Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) "is not working as well as everyone hoped," Feldman said. "It's a problem of expanding a nuclear agency into an energy agency."

ERDA was created last January and assumed the nuclear responsibilities of the Atomic Energy Commission. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission took over the regulation of nuclear power plants at the same time. Feldman, an engineer at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Oak Ridge, Tenn., said problems have occurred in the development of the breeder reactor, a nuclear system that eventually produces more fuel than it consumes.

"I think we may have been overenthusiastic in our schedules—misjudged our time schedule and costs," he said.

The breeder reactor was scheduled for private operation in 1985. It probably won't be ready until 1995 and will cost about $10 billion. A test system is being constructed at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

While the United States nuclear industry has encountered problems in recent months, other countries are moving ahead, said Feldman, who recently returned from a 32-day trip to seven countries.

"Look at other countries and how they respond to the energy problem. The biggest word that comes out is nuclear," he said.

Feldman toured oil-rich Iran, which is planning to build about two dozen nuclear plants. And France is well ahead of the United States in developing the breeder reactor and Japan also has been moving rapidly into a large nuclear program, he said.

Shortly after the Arab oil embargo, nuclear energy was considered the nation's best bet to achieve energy independence from foreign fuels. About 5 percent of the U.S. electrical energy needs are met by nuclear energy. Experts had hoped the amount would increase to about 50 percent by the end of the century.

But serious questions of safety, security, waste disposal, slow licensing procedures and design problems have hampered America's movement toward nuclear power as a major part of energy production.

Feldman admitted that the nuclear community hasn't done a good selling job of the virtues of atomic power.

"We have to talk nuclear energy to the plumber and the carpenter," he said. "I think we can solve a lot of the resistance problems in that fashion."

people to further the community needs. This type of investment helps a community to help itself to better community for all," said Wiseman.

Two Dixon women were hospitalized following a car accident Friday.

A car driven by Vicki Schroyer, 18, was eastbound on U.S. 52 near Sterling Road. Her car went off the right side of the road and turned over in a ditch. Both Schroyer and a passenger, Sandra K. Werner, 19, were thrown from the car.

Bonnie D. Stahl, 21, Rt. 2, escaped injury after she lost control of her car on Anchor Road Friday afternoon.

She was northbound when her car swerved across the road. The car knocked out an electrical power line, two natural gas meter hook-ups, a telephone connection, a cable TV hook-up and 60 feet of fence.

Stahl was cited for driving too fast for conditions, having unsafe equipment, and no valid driver's license.

Hospitalized in crash

Ralph L. Shipman was listed in fair condition at KSB Hospital today, following a car accident Friday night.

Shipman was southbound on Ordinance Plant Road when he reportedly fell asleep. His car passed through an intersection with Sterling Road, slid down an embankment, and rolled over.

Lee County Sheriff's Deputies are investigating the accident. No tickets have been issued.

Founded in 1960 and operating as a cultural exchange arm of Mexican National Institute of Fine Arts, the Ballet Aztlán (as the dance troupe was originally known) has performed throughout the world, including successful tours during the past year in Japan and the United States.

Seguin said the eight-part, fast-moving show provides family entertainment for all ages with dozens of native Mexican folk dancers. The costumes of the dancers almost represent a fashion show of traditional regional clothing from Sonora to Yucatan.

Seguin said there will be no reserved seats for the performance. Tickets may be purchased at the Information Center on the first floor at SVC or at the door the evening of the performance.

Alcoholism forum scheduled at SVC

A public forum on alcoholism will be held at Sauk Valley College in Room 2K2 at 7:30 on Nov. 3, according to Richard Holtam, Coordinator of the Public Services Program at SVC.

Tom Riley, coordinator of the alcoholism program for John Deere and Company in Moline, will serve as moderator and speaker for the meeting, which is expected to run 1½ hours in length.

Holtam said this forum, which is open to the public free of charge, is an opportunity for area residents to share knowledge and feelings about alcohol. Persons who attend will also find out what sources of help and information now exist in local communities.

Holtam said it is not possible to live in today's society without being affected economically, socially, and emotionally by alcohol — the third largest public health problem in our country. So if you drink, don't drink, know someone who does, this public dialogue is for you.

Coffee will be served and a means of asking questions of the speaker anonymously will be provided. Further information about the program may be obtained from Holtam at the college.

Walnut school tax hike goes to vote

The Walnut Community High School District Board of Education adopted a resolution to hold a tax referendum proposing a tax increase for educational purposes of 40 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. On Nov. 18, with polls open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. It will be held at the Walnut Grade School with that District referendum so voters may come to polls at a single location.

The board has tried to cut certain areas of the budget without adversely affecting the educational program, but because of inflation the expenditures are now greater than revenues. The 1975-76 budget projections indicate a potential deficit of $40,000 by the end of this school year. Indications are revenues will increase very little over the next few years while expenditures will continue to rise.

This leads the board to seek other alternatives. One alternative is a tax increase through the proposed referendum. Other alternatives are: 1) enlarge class sizes, cut programs, and reduce staff and services; 2) continue the present educational programs and services, thus, continuing spending at its present rate plus inflation; and 3) consolidation. Even with a tax increase, these other alternatives will be weighed by the board.

On Nov. 4, at 8 p.m., a public meeting will be held in the high school auditorium to allow the public to obtain information and ask questions concerning the referendum.

Two charged in accident

OREGON — Ogle County Sheriff's Deputies received a report of a hit-and-run accident on Ill. 2 Friday night.

Ronald Gale, 34, Oregon, was southbound on the highway, 1½ miles south of Oregon, when a car turned onto Ill. 2 from a side road into the path of Gale's car. Allen Gale, 6, a passenger, was injured in the collision and taken to KSB Hospital, where he was treated and released.

A motorist spotted a car with damage pull in between two semi-trucks. The car, owned by David Wright, 18, Mt. Morris, was believed to have caused the accident.

Deputies charged George Harmon, 22, Oregon, the alleged driver of the Wright car with failure to yield turning left, driving while his license had been revoked and leaving the scene of a personal injury accident. Wright was charged with allowing an unauthorized person to drive.

They were apprehended following the accident, after leaving the car and reportedly fleeing into a field.

Dixon youth ticketed

Dixon Police investigated a three-car pileup on North Gale-n Avenue Friday night.

Mary E. Crombie, 17, 414 Second Ave., had stopped her car in the northbound inside lane, near McKenney Street. A car driven by James L. Meakins, 21, Rock Falls, stopped behind her but a trailing car, driven by Ross E. Radandt, 16, 1218 Brigadoon, was unable to stop and rammed Meakins's vehicle, pushing that auto into the Crombie car.

Radandt was charged with driving too fast for conditions. Meakins was found to possess no valid driver's license after the mishap.

License charge

State Police charged Richard Bruckunier, 21, Aurora, with driving with a revoked license.

Bruckunier was arrested Friday morning at the intersection of U.S. 30 and U.S. 52. He was released on bond and scheduled to appear in court Nov. 18.

No bid contract cost taxpayers thousands

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Taxpayers lost thousands of dollars through three no-bids contracts for rental of office furniture by the controversial State Board of Elections.

An investigation by The Associated Press found that $39,675.13 in taxpayers money was paid for rental of office furniture for the board. Officials of the agency say the purchase price of the same equipment would have been $36,937.30, a figure that is open to question.

The Springfield company that rented the furniture to the state, Central Office Equipment, now says it will consider the three rental contracts as lease-purchase agreements and hand the desks and chairs over to the government.

But board officials admit that in expectation of having to relinquish the rental furniture, they already have purchased replacements for thousands of dollars more. They say they now have a surplus.

"We have problems with some of our contracts," Ron Michaelson, director of administration for the board, said in an interview.

The AP investigation was prompted by complaints of squandering by the board, which is responsible for administering the state elections laws, and a payroll loaded with friends and relatives of influential Illinois politicians.

State records show hefty no-bids contracts to politically connected consultants, including $45-and $40-per-hour lobbying fees to win General Assembly approval of the board's appropriation and a bill to allow the agency to bypass the state Finance Department in submitting its expenditures. It also found that politicians had eased their relatives and associates into patronage jobs on the board. Michaelson, director of administration for the board, said the decision to rent rather than purchase the furniture was made because of a problem in the agency's budget.

"There was money to rent furniture but not enough money to buy furniture," he said, noting that the rental fees could be paid out of the agency's contractual services appropriation while payments for buying it would have had to come from its equipment purchases allotment.

Michaelson said that after the board reviewed the rental agreement it contacted Central Office Equipment and got the firm to agree to consider the contracts, which specifically stated the furniture was to be rented, as lease-purchase arrangements. But it agreed to do so only if the rental fees totaled more than what the purchase price would have been, Michaelson said.

Competitive bidding is required in the purchase of office furniture, although the procedure generally is handled by the Department of General Services and not the agency involved. Bidding usually is not required in the case of contractual services.

Contracts for professional, technical and artistic services are specifically exempted from the bidding requirement. Board officials say they are satisfied that their no-bids contracts with Central Office Equipment fall into the same category.

Auditor Gen. Robert Cronson said he would not comment on the furniture contract because the board currently is under audit by his office. However, he did volunteer this opinion: "I'm not at all sure that the contracts don't fall under the state Purchasing Act."

That act requires competitive bidding for office furniture costing more than $2,500.

Michaelson said one of the reasons why the furniture was rented from Central Office Equipment was that it was needed immediately and there was no other way to obtain it.

"The furniture was needed the next day and it was delivered the next day," he said. "Central Office Equipment was the only supplier who could get it to us that fast."

Various civic groups and a handful of legislators have called for reform of the controversial board.

Old myth exploded

Life of British soldier in Revolutionary War was terrible

EDITOR'S NOTE — There's the popular image of the British Redcoat as a well-trained, well-fed soldier. And there's the reality, which was quite different.

By DANIEL K. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — On a late fall day 200 years ago, a soldier in the British marines was found guilty of "insolent mutinous behavior." His sentence: 800 lashes with the cat-o'-nine-tails.

Two months later, a private and his wife were convicted of receiving stolen goods. He got 1,000 lashes and she, mercifully, 100 strokes and three months in prison.

The same day, however, two other privates were found guilty of breaking into a store and ordered hanged.

Accounts of the punishments were entered matter of factly in the orderly book of Sir William Howe, commander of the British forces in America.

This, in the occupied town of Boston, in the grim, cold months of 1775, was military justice.

The threat of the whip, the hint of the rope, were constant reminders to the common British soldier of his station in life. He was poorer than a working man, infinitely lower than an officer and despised by loyalists and rebels alike.

A saying popular those days in the British navy summed it up:

"A messmate before a shipmate, a shipmate before a stranger, a stranger before a dog, a dog before a soldier."

Despite the popular image — ragtag Continental soldiers, armed with hunting rifles, fighting well-fed and impeccably uniformed Redcoats — the life of the British soldier was miserable.

To begin with, many were there against their will. Criminals were pardoned on the condition they enlist. And as the war heated up, the unemployed and the poor were drafted.

To keep them from running away, the men were locked up until their troop ships sailed for America.

Beyond a place to sleep, military life had little to offer.

Although many of the men were married, soldiers earned less than common laborers, officers less than tailors and weavers. A pamphlet circulating about the time of the Battle of Bunker Hill read:

"From the eight pence per day which is issued for the pay of a soldier, when all deductions are made, for clothing, for necessities, for washing, for the paymaster, for the surgeon, and for the multiplied articles of useless and unwholesome food, there is not sufficient surplus for healthful subsistence; and as to the little enjoyments and recreations, which even the meanest rank of men can call their own in any country, the brave, the honorable veteran soldier must not aspire to."

Then there were the uniforms. Scarlet coats, stunning from a distance, were bulky and uncomfortable for men dodging musket fire in the forests of the New World.

They went into battle carrying an ammunition box, musket, bayonet, extra clothes, a blanket, food, a canteen, and part of a tent. When infantrymen charged up the slope in the Battle of Bunker Hill, they carried at least 125 pounds of gear.

If they were wounded, the soldiers rarely received anything close to competent medical care. Each regiment had a surgeon, but they were essentially political appointees, and some had no medical training. Nurses, when they existed, were often wives of soldiers who followed the army.

The soldiers' religious needs were poorly cared for, too. Each regiment was supposed to have a chaplain, but like the surgeons, their performance was sporadic.

Some colonels refused to let their men leave quarters on Sunday. They figured that instead of going to church, they would get drunk.

The colonels' concerns were probably well founded. Drinking was one of the few inexpensive, socially acceptable diversions of the time.

Another was gambling. British soldiers had few possessions they could afford to lose, and sometimes they wagered the clothes off their bodies. It was common for unlucky soldiers to have to borrow enough clothing from their friends to pass inspection.

Even if a soldier put up with his problems and excelled, there was little chance of ever becoming an officer.

Instead of being granted on the basis of merit, commissions were bought and sold like produce. The most prestigious commissions went for the highest prices.

When a soldier did well in battle, he was never rewarded with the standard military ego booster, the medal. In those days, the British military had no decorations for gallantry.

A new era in home climate control begins

About forty-five years ago, scientists began developing a revolutionary heating device that uses the heat of the earth's atmosphere. They called it a heat pump. Today, it is the only commercially available heating system that provides an answer to shrinking supplies of fuel oil and gas.

How the heat pump works.

Basically, the heat pump moves heat from one place to another. Using electricity to run the device, it extracts heat from a limitless source—the heat in outdoor air. During winter, enough heat remains in the air—even on the coldest and cloudiest days—to be extracted by the pump and transferred indoors as clean, flameless heat. And during warm weather, the process automatically reverses, removing excess indoor heat and humidity—like an air conditioner.

Better efficiency.

In short, the heat pump does the job of both a furnace and an air conditioner. But there's an important difference. The heat pump produces more than 1½ units of heat energy for every unit it consumes. That's better efficiency than any other current heating system.

It's ready.

It's ideal for new homes because it won't be obsolete in ten years. It's not dependent on the fossil fuels that may not be available in the future. To the homeowner, that means significant long-term savings on heating costs.

The heat pump is a big step in the conservation of scarce fuels. And here in northern Illinois, the electricity you would use to capture the heat comes mainly from coal and nuclear energy, rather than scarce oil and gas.

To get the full advantages of the heat pump, it's important to get a quality product, properly installed and reliably serviced. For the name of qualified installers in your area, call G. A. Larson Co. (Westinghouse Distrib.), (815) 963-0471, or General Electric Co., (312) 496-6356. If you want additional heat pump information, call your local Commonwealth Edison office and talk to our marketing engineer.

Dixon blasts Kewanee 37-7

By JIM FOX
Telegraph Sports Writer

KEWANEE—Dixon decided to let loose with its vented up frustrations, here, Friday evening. These frustrations, including injuries, previous losses and bon-fires all climaxed in a well-played super aggressive NCIC contest for Dixon that witnessed the Dukes stomp the Kewanee Boiler-makers 37-7.

Kewanee was simply out-matched as Dixon controlled every aspect of the game. The running game was on, with four backs picking up good yardage. The Dixon defense was extremely tough, allowing but 54 total yards on the night, and throwing Boilermaker backs for considerable losses that forced Kewanee to amass a negative three yards on the ground.

But in every silver lining there is a black cloud. In the conference finale Dixon lost the services of backs Mike LeBlanc and Chris Mullery. Mike McDonald was also slightly injured in the battle. LeBlanc missed the second half with a back injury, while Mullery suffered a bad ankle injury. The possible services of the three backs in next week's game will be determined after thorough examination.

Kewanee opened the game on the unexpected side with the utilization of the onside kick-off. One mistake was committed in the execution, and that was the oversight by the Boilermakers that the ball must remain in bounds if they are to take possession. Dixon took control on its own 43. McDonald gained steady yardage, but an illegal procedure penalty nullified a first down and the Dukes were forced to punt on its first series of downs.

Kewanee could generate no offense, not only on its first series but on almost every possession of the evening, and were also forced to give the ball away. After this initial exchange of punts, Dixon settled down to business and proceeded to wump Kewanee.

McDonald, LeBlanc and Gary Magnafici were the ball-handlers in the initial scoring drive that covered 77 yards on 11 plays. McDonald moved the ball from the 23 to the 39 in two carries, while LeBlanc picked up 16 yards on a shot up the gut. Magnafici raced for 18 markers around his left end to put the ball deep into Kewanee's territory on the 28.

After a loss of five, sophomore quarterback Mike Swinton hit LeBlanc on a short pass up the middle that was good for 12 markers and a first down. LeBlanc carried twice for nine bringing a third down and one situation into focus.

McDonald got the call, and the junior halfback spurred over his right tackle, slipped through two would-be defenders and skipped into the end-zone for the first score of the night. Rick Trader booted the extra-point and Dixon controlled a 7-0 lead.

Kewanee tried to be tricky again in its following series when the hosts faked a fourth down punt deep in their territory. Doug Devine was not to be fooled on the play, and brought down Marty Keim on the 33.

Taking over, the Dukes went right to work in an attempt to build up the score, a tactic Dixon has not had much of a chance to work on all season. McDonald gained three as the first quarter ended before LeBlanc raced for 18 and was robbed of a touchdown when an official plowed into the senior back and stopped him in his tracks. On the play LeBlanc suffered an injury to his back and saw limited action the remainder of the half, and no action in the second half.

McDonald gained eight to put the ball on the four, but Mullery was nailed at the line. An incomplete pass from Swinton to Ed Bushman tried a fourth down and Dixon elected to go for the field goal. The 17-yard attempt was wide to the right by Trader and a scoring opportunity went awry.

But Dixon did not want three points anyway, as Steve Fischer proved seconds later. Kewanee's Matt Peed lost the ball on a carry on the following series and Fischer picked up the fumble and scampered 22 yards for the score. The conversion kick failed but the Dukes boasted a 13-0 second quarter lead.

And Dixon kept rolling. Kewanee could do nothing offensively and were forced to punt once again. Right after the second Dixon touchdown the Dukes marched downfield in seek of score number three.

LeBlanc ate up 22 yards on three carries and Swinton, who moved his team down the field in true methodical form, picked up six on a keeper up the middle. The 47-yard eight-play drive was highlighted on a one-yard plunge by Swinton that moved Dixon ahead 19-0. Devine was called upon to attempt the extra point but a mishandling of the snap did not allow a boot.

The Dixon defense was enjoying itself as much as the productive offense. Boilermaker backs were seeing nothing but big, mean, purple and white linemen all night as Kewanee was thrown for numerous losses.

Fischer recovered another fumble late in the first half on the home team's 39 that was to result in the final Duke score of the half. McDonald scored his second six-pointer of the contest on a 16-yard broken play scamper. On the hand-off McDonald rammed into Swinton, but regained his balance and raced around his right end for the score. Devine missed the conversion kick and Dixon held a 25-0 insurmountable half-time lead.

Kewanee came around a little in the second half, especially on the defense. Dixon netted a negative 16 yards in the third quarter due to a determined but too late-line. Two highlights of the scoreless third period were interceptions by Dan Kopacz and Jeff Webb.

Kewanee scored its only touchdown of the game on a 19-yard pass from Brad Cernovich to Mark Baker that capped a 35-yard drive early in the fourth quarter. Tony Becker split the uprights to alter the score 25-7.

The seven points tacked on the board by Kewanee brought its conference total to 13 for the season. Opponents in NCIC play have totaled 154 in burying the Boilermakers in the cellar of the division with an 0-5 record and an 0-8 overall mark.

Dixon, on the other hand, has been outscored 94-86 in conference action. The Dukes finish the conference season at 2-3, good enough for a third-place position in the standings. Overall, Dixon stands at 2-6, with Rock Falls and Newman, in that order, remaining on the schedule.

Magnafici got Kewanee's touchdown right back as the junior took a pitch from Swinton and sprinted around his left end on a nine-yard score. Dixon pulled off its own trickery in the drive when Devine faked a punt and completed a pass to Mullery good for 25-yards and a first down. Once again the extra-point missed but Dixon led 31-7.

The final Duke score came at 1:04 in the game when Webb bulldozed six yards, dragging two defenders with him, into the endzone. The touchdown made the dinale score 37-7.

"It was a big win for us tonight," commented Dixon head coach Sam Applebaum after the triumph. "This win is a moral booster, not only for the kids but also for the coaches. We were all down going into the game."

"It was a real team effort out there tonight. Everyone contributed to the outcome. With only two nights of practice this past week it had to take a team effort to win, and that's what it was."

Leading rusher for the Dukes was LeBlanc with 73 yards on eight carries in one-half of action. McDonald picked up 34 on 15 carries and two touchdowns. Mullery rushed for 56 yards on 11 chances.

Swinton was three for six in the passing department for 27 yards, while Mike Ramage completed one pass in four attempts for 11 markers. Dixon dominated the statistics in every category.

Except penalties. Kewanee was penalized in the final minutes of play three times for unsportsmanlike conduct. The Boilermakers played less than clean throughout the game, the reason why Applebaum made a fine decision in refusing to shake hands with the opponents after the battle.

Rochelle clinches Southwest crown

ROCHELLE—Mike Dyer scored twice, while Dale Rand also tallied two times and tossed a 42-yard scoring pass to Andy Colbert to pace the Rochelle Hubs to a 32-22 victory over the Hall Red Devils, here, Friday night in a Southwest NCIC football contest.

The win wraps up the NCIC Southwest title for Rochelle with an unblemished 5-0 record, and advances the Hubs' overall record to 7-1. Rochelle also earns a spot in the Illinois High School football playoffs with the triumph.

Rochelle grabbed a 6-0 lead in the opening quarter as Dyer smashed over from the one. The extra point missed. Hall rallied to deadlock the game 12-12 at half, as Bud Mathews bolted over from the four and caught a 52-yard pass from Steve Weberski.

The Hubs got six points when Colbert hauled in the Rand aerial. Rochelle broke the tie with a pair of touchdowns in the third stanza, as Rand sprinted 25 yards for one score and 13 yards for the other. Mathews picked up his third touchdown for the visitors in the last 12 minutes while Dyer balanced the six-pointer with one of his own on a 26-yard dash. Rand added the two-point conversion run.

Rochelle tallied 383 yards for the night, with 212 rushing and 171 passing on only four completions. The Hubs end their regular season next Friday at Marengo.

Eagles lose 34-28

PEARL CITY—The Pearl City Wolves moved 65 yards in the final 1:15, here, Friday night, capped by a 30-yard scoring pass to Robin Brinkmeier with just :11 showing, to defeat the Franklin Center Eagles 34-28 in an Upstate Illini football game.

The Eagles roared to a 28-6 half-time edge, but did not score the second half, while the home team rallied for 28 points in the last two quarters. The Wolves opened the scoring as Chet Marcum raced 71 yards to paydirt.

Franklin Center came right back as Rick Baker tossed a five-yard scoring pass to Jeff Huber and then hit Scott Murphy with the conversion aerial. A two-yard run by Jeff Heckman gave the Eagles a 14-6 advantage before the quarter expired.

Two more touchdowns enabled Franklin Center to hold a 28-6 half-time lead, as Murphy dashed three yards for one score and Heckman grabbed an eight-yard pass from Baker for the other. Murphy gathered in a conversion aerial.

Marcum tallied once and ran the extra point, while Todd Shepherd crossed the goal line twice for the Wolves to set up the winning touchdown pass to Brinkmeier. "We had good balance," Franklin Center head varsity coach Ken Neahr commented. "We moved the ball well in the first half."

Franklin Center slips to 2-4 in Upstate action and 2-5-1 overall while Pearl City is now 5-2 and 5-3, respectively. The Eagles round out their 1975 season at home versus Hanover next Saturday in another conference tilt.

Walnut drops to 1-7 with the loss, while Dunlap is now 4-3-1. All games are conference contests. The Blue Raiders forged a 14-0 lead midway through the second quarter but could not hold on for the win.

Toby Greenwood tallied both Walnut touchdowns on a 21-yard run and a four-yard scamper in the second quarter. Don Monier fired a conversion pass to Pete Miller to round out the Blue Raiders' scoring.

The first play after Greenwood bolted over for his second touchdown, Dunlap's Mike Shadley took a pitch-out and sprinted 65 yards for a score. Johnston tied the extra point. The visitors knotted the game later in the quarter, as Roger Bayzinger fell on a loose ball after a Walnut punt attempt was blocked.

Bayzinger's recovery in the end zone made it 14-13, with Johnston's toe on the kick resulting in the deadlock. Walnut head varsity coach Chuck Lane commented five different players tried to gain possession of the blocked punt before Bayzinger succeeded in falling on the ball.

Dunlap netted three of its four first downs in its final drive which resulted in Johnston's winning kick. Walnut had a 10-4 advantage in first downs and a 162-118 edge in total net yards. Greenwood, who was held out of the game offensively in the second half after bruising his shoulder, paced the Blue Raiders with 82 yards in 21 carries.

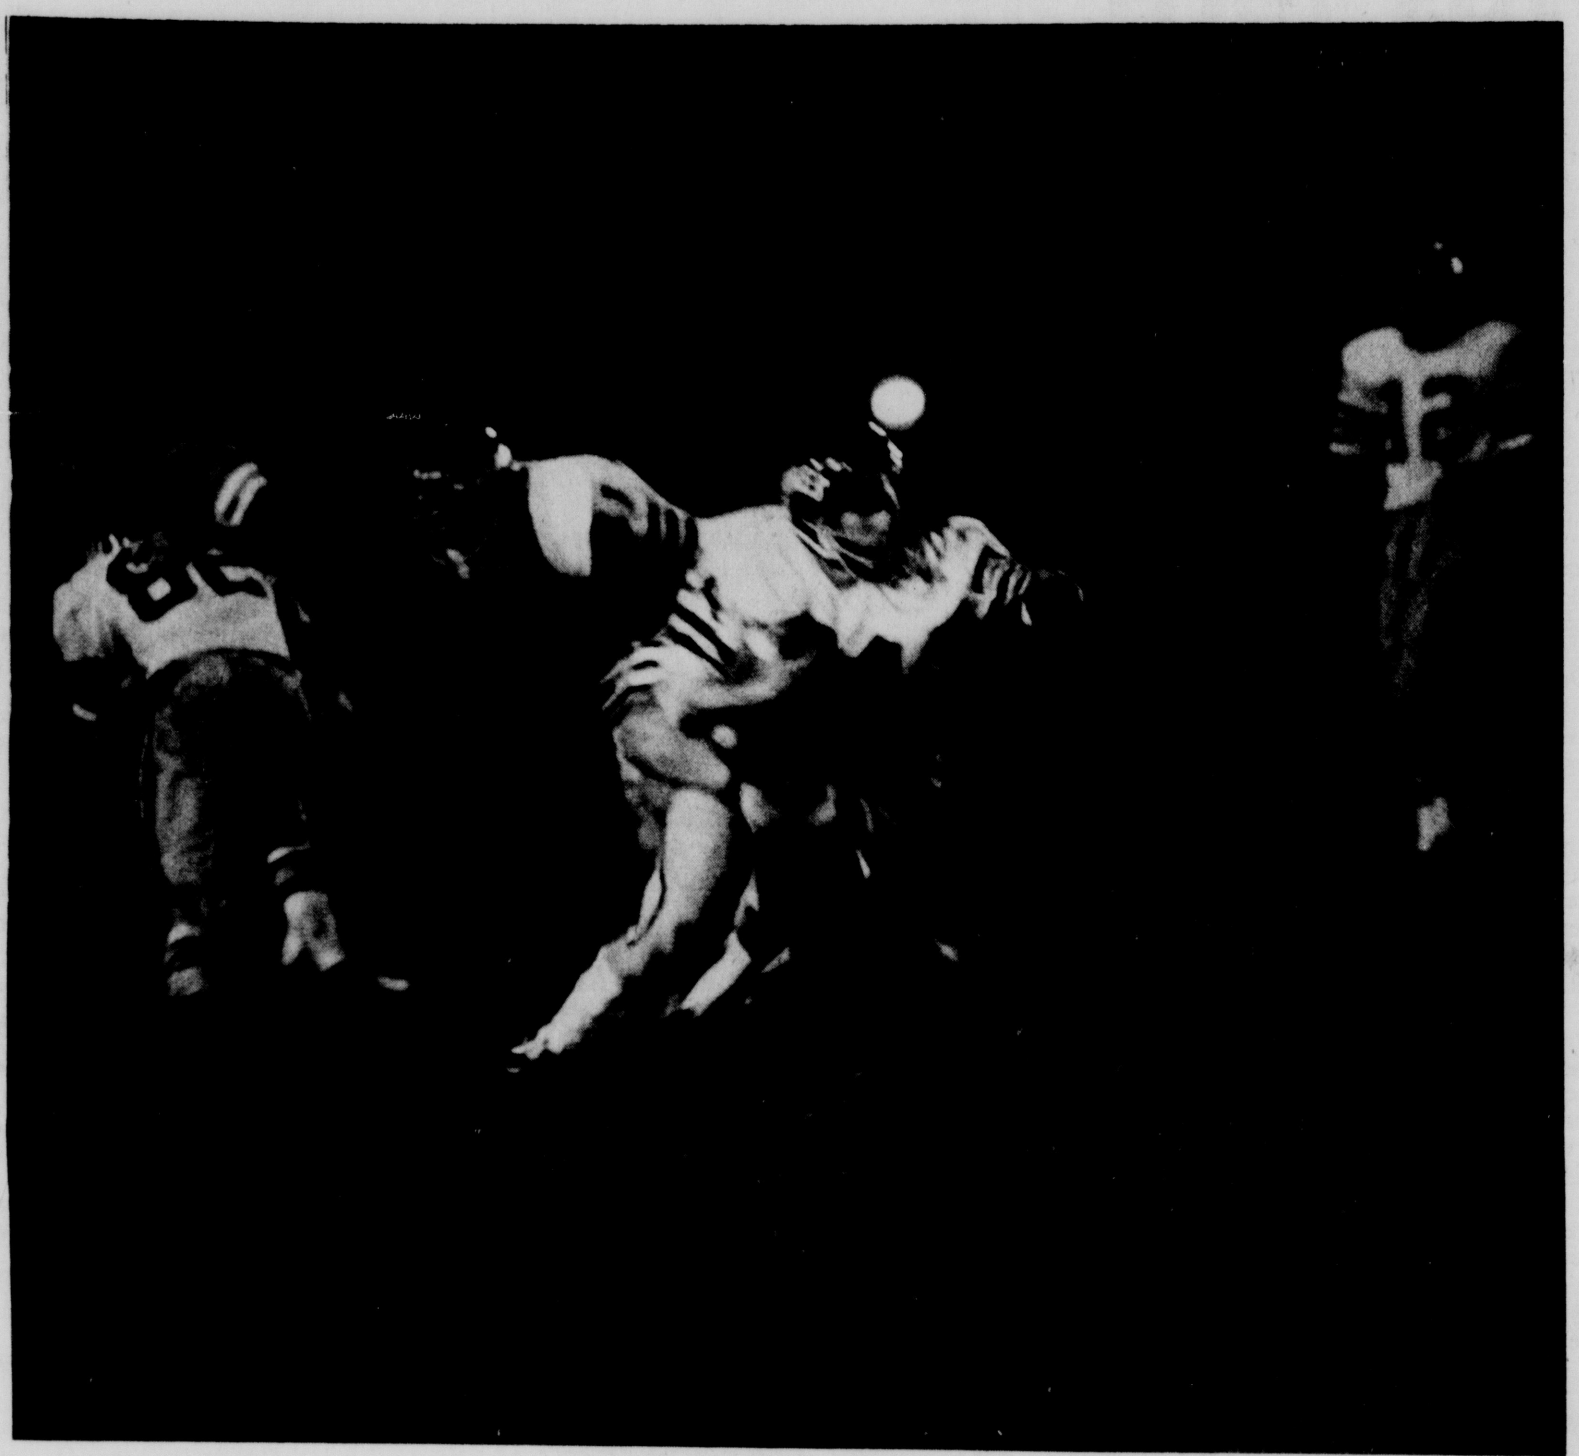

Walnut ends its 1975 season by hosting Elmwood in a Blackhawk battle next Friday.

Forreston earns IHSA playoff spot

FORRESTON—After a scoreless first half, the Forreston Cardinals tallied a pair of third-quarter touchdowns and made the points stand up for a 14-12 victory over the Mt. Morris Mounders, here, Friday night in a Mid-Northern football game.

Forreston clinched a tie for the Mid-Northern title with the win and earned a share of the Illinois High School Association football playoffs. John Collman opened the scoring for Forreston with a two-yard dive with six minutes to go in the third quarter. Steve Stocker booted the extra point.

Then, on the ensuing kickoff, a Mt. Morris player fumbled and Ken Kutzke fell on the loose ball for a Cardinals' touchdown. Stocker tied the conversion and Forreston had a 14-0 lead. The Mounders rallied with a pair of fourth-stanza touchdowns to make it close.

Dan Waddelow fired a 40-yard scoring strike to Ron Alden for the first score, while Donn Claussen turned a screen pass into a 40-yard touchdown sprint with six minutes to play. Neither extra-point conversion was successful.

Mike Ross ended the night with 69 yards in 20 carries for Forreston, while Collman attained 39 markers in a dozen attempts. The Cardinals end their regular season next week in a non-conference home contest versus Dakota. Forreston also won the sophomore contest, 30-14.

Versus the Minnesota Vikings

Bears get second chance

CHICAGO—Having battled the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers to a standstill before crumbling 34-3 in the second half, the Chicago Bears open a three-game home stand Monday night, getting a second chance against the other Super Bowl finalist Minnesota Vikings at 8:08 p.m.

With two of Chicago's most experienced secondary hands (corners Nemiah Wilson and Ted Vactor) riding the bench with injuries three weeks ago, Fran Tarkenton dazzled the young Bears in Bloomington.

Tarkenton connected on 14 of 17 first-half passes for 193 yards and touchdown passes to John Gilliam and Stu Voight to settle the dispute 21-3 in the first 30 minutes. The Vikings coasted to a 28-3 win. The Tarkenton sharpshooting (30-19-250) wasn't as easy as the statistics might indicate, with the Chicago front four harassing the Vikings with a strong rush all afternoon.

Tackle Wally Chambers accounted for all five Chicago sackings, making the afternoon uncomfortable for Minnesota. A year ago tackle Jim Osborne broke through four times to sack Tarkenton.

Should the Bears entertain thoughts of reversing a three-game losing string against the perennial victors of NFL Central Division hostilities, they would need a strong pass rush and duplicate elements of their effort in Pittsburgh.

Embarrassed by the Lions at Pontiac a week ago, the Bears came out ready and running for the Steelers.

As starters Walter Payton (knee) and Cid Edwards (ankle) watched from the sidelines, replacements Mike Adamle (17-110) and Roland Harper (13-86) combined for 196 yards on 30 carries—a 6.5 average per rush against the Steelers. Adamle, obtained (with a draft pick and rights to a WFL player) from the New York Jets for Carl Garrett in September, turned in the top showing by a Chicago running back since Jim Harrison chewed up 113 yards of Atlanta real estate Sept. 17, 1972.

Harper, a 17th-round Bear draft pick and one of 14 rookies on Jack Pardee's first NFL team, would have joined Adamle in the 100-yard circle had his run, early in the third quarter, not been nullified by a holding call.

While previously unheard from legs of Adamle and Harper were following the blocks of an aroused corps of linemen, the defenders were especially efficient in the first half against the champions of the NFL.

With Wilson and Vactor healthy and a revised linebacking alignment that found free agent Larry Ely manning the middle and second-year pro Waymond Bryant joining Doug Buffone on the flanks, the Bears permitted just 100 yards to the Steelers in the first half.

Twenty of those came on a fake punt and pass by Bobby Walden that set up a Roy Gerala field goal, tying the score.

Chicago passing via the arm of Gary Huff was not effective for the first time since the third-year man from Florida State assumed the offensive controls. Huff could only hit eight of 22 for 46 yards to go with the running game.

In the first Minnesota game he hit 15 of 27 tries for 113 yards, going to Bob Grim five times for 46 yards.

"We're going to win some games if we keep after it," said Pardee after the battle of Pittsburgh. "We took a step forward today with our hitting and team unity. It will come.

"We weren't outclassed physically by Minnesota in the first game. The Vikings just outsmarted us. Our mistakes and penalties hurt us badly in that game. You win by cutting down on the mistakes and hard work. We intend to do both."

In smashing Mid-Northern game

Marcos edge Hawks

By MIKE CUNIFF
Telegraph Sports Editor
OREGON — It was a typical Mid-Northern football battle with a minimum of passing balanced by a lot of grunts and groans in the pit where the Oregon Hawks and Polo Marcos linemen slammed and crashed into each other time and again.

When the echoes of the last hit had died away, Polo walked off the field with a 14-7 victory which enabled the Marcos to tie the Forreton Cardinals for the 1975 Conference title although Forreton will represent the Mid-Northern in the Illinois High School football playoffs after beating the Marcos last week.

Forreton Wins

Forreton slipped by Mt. Morris 14-12 Friday night. Oregon had a 7-6 halftime lead after controlling the ball for 40 plays while Polo began the action 27 times. The Marcos reversed the count in the final half, snapping the ball on 40 occasions to 30 for the Hawks.

Neither team scored in the opening quarter despite two drives by Oregon. The Hawks took the kickoff and moved upfield for 51 yards before quarterback Scott Lewison fumbled the ball which was recovered by the Marcos' Scott Bartlett on the Polo four-yard line.

After Dean Harmon returned the kick eight yards to his own 41 for Oregon, the Hawks ground out the yardage as Greg Blumeyer carried four times for 22 yards, Eric Jacobs five attempts for eight yards, Lewison three times for 18 and Ed Smith a solitary carry for three yards.

Twice Thrown

Jacobs was twice thrown for losses in the drive as Lon Feary dropped the halfback for a loss of two while Mark Person, Jerry Love and Mark Ebert combined for a loss of one on another occasion. Paul Busser also tripped up Blumeyer after a gain of 10.

After Bartlett's recovery, the Marcos kept the ball for six plays including a fresh set of downs before Oregon's Jeff Cordes and Jacobs stopped Tim Mount for no gain and Jeff Grobe overthrew Mount to force a punt.

Dave Satterfield side-stepped the first would-be tackler to gain nine yards back to the Oregon 48. The Hawks surged upfield with Jacobs getting the call three times for seven yards while Blumeyer carried on a quartet of occasions for a net of 15 markers including a 12-yard jaunt up the middle before being stopped by Greg Smith and Tony Karrow.

Blumeyer Dash

The Blumeyer dash ended at the Polo 31 before he came right back with three yards on two attempts. Jacobs spun forward for three with Tim Naylor making the stop to set up a fourth and four situation.

Jacobs got the call again but was hauled down after a gain of two yards by Larry Bowlin and Mike Byrd. The Marcos ran only three plays before turning the ball back over. Ray Schmidt slammed into the middle of the line and then Stutter-

COMPLETE PASS—The diagrams in the Polo playbook show Jeff Grobe (11) tossing a little swing pass to Tim Mount (45) but the Marcos overlooked the presence of Oregon's Dave Satterfield (84) on this effort. stepped back to his left for three markers (Todd Bauer the Oregon tackler.).

Mount got three up the middle (Joe Conroy and Harmon tackle) before a bad pitch out on the next play cost the visitors possession. Oregon's Jacobs knocked Schmidt away from the ball and the Hawks' Harmon fell on the bobble on the Polo 21.

Nothing Results

Nothing came of the miscue, however, as the Marcos dug in and halted the Oregon rushing attack to a net of four yards in as many jaunts into the line. With fourth and four, Love slammed down Blumeyer for a loss of two.

Another Polo mistake finally cost the Marcos as a bad snap on an attempted punt ended with Bartlett being tackled by Bauer on the Polo 24. Jacobs got four and six up the middle and then zoomed into the end zone on a 14-yard dash. Love upset Jacobs at the goal line but the senior back fell into the six-point area with 9:53 remaining in the quarter. Bill Fearer toed the extra point and Oregon had a 7-0 advantage.

The Marcos once again could do nothing against the Hawks defense as two rushes gained five yards before a swing pass to Mount was smothered for a six-yard loss by Satterfield. The Hawks did little and paved the way to the first Polo touchdown with a faulty punt.

Person Fell

Fearer could not handle the snap before Person fell on the loose ball on the Oregon 38. It took Polo nine plays to maneuver the ball into the end zone. Grove got the touchdown on an 11-yard scamper around right end. The conversion pass to Scott Smith was overthrown.

The Marcos took the second-half kickoff and proceeded to produce the winning points on a 45-yard drive capped by a one-yard plunge by Bartlett. A personal foul on Oregon plus a pass interference penalty aided the Polo drive.

Love hauled in the conversion pass with a diving reception in the left corner of the end zone and the Marcos had a 14-7 lead with nine minutes remaining in the stanza. Each team handled the ball three times in the time left but could do little.

Smashing Tackle

A smashing tackle on Jacobs by Smith produced a fumble which Feary fell on. Bauer sacked Grobe for 13 yards and another faulty snap on a punt enabled Bauer to gain possession for the Hawks on the Marcos 15.

Three plays produced as many yards for Oregon before Blumeyer was stopped inches short on fourth down. A 24-yard run by Mount was wiped out by a holding call while Satterfield blitzed Grobe for a nine-yard loss and Harmon tipped away a pass intended for Love.

The Hawks again did not take advantage of another Polo miscue to begin the final period. Mount's punt hit blocker Love in the back and was downed on the Polo 26. Lewison was thrown for a loss of four by Paul Busser before Ron Shuman stopped Jacobs for nothing.

Lewison Sacked

Feary, Person and Shuman then sacked Lewison for a loss of 10 to make irrelevant a pass completion of six yards to Jacobs with what was to be the only successful aerial of the game by Lewison.

On its next possession, Oregon saw a chance to tie the game evaporate at Jacobs was stopped after a 12-yard advancement by Karrow who was the final defender. Polo gained possession at the 3:47 mark and kept the ball for two vital minutes as Mount and Schmidt spun and twisted for necessary yardage.

A punt handed the ball back to Oregon and Karrow once again stopped a Jacobs' break-away threat after a gain of 10. Bartlett disrupted a pass intended for Satterfield while Bowlin dropped Jacobs for a loss of one to seal the win for Polo.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE F-606: Billy R., aged 3, was a cute little boy who idolized his daddy.
"Dr. Crane," their pastor informed me, "his daddy took him for a ride on a bulldozer recently."
"Then he let Billy down and told him to go back to the house."
"But when his daddy backed the bulldozer, he crushed Billy to death!"
"For Billy was still standing behind the machine!"
"Naturally, it was a tragedy for all the family."
"But you can imagine the grief of Billy's daddy, who also idolized his little boy."
"Dr. Crane, please tell your readers to exercise more care in driving their automobiles and farm machinery."
Needless Tragedies
Similar unnecessary tragedies occur frequently in our automotive age.
For many young people race their cars along city streets, despite the fact that children may be playing ball along the curbs or on their front lawns. And if the ball rolls out into the street, the youngster may be so fascinated with trying to retrieve it, that he fails to look both ways.

So he will race into the street, right in the middle of the block, where he is then struck by an oncoming auto.
Many times the resulting accident is not the fault of the mature motorist.
But often the younger, hot rod type of driver, is speeding too fast.
One of the differences between mature drivers and the youthful type, is the fact the older motorists anticipate future dangers.
If they see kiddies playing on the front lawn in the middle of the block, and if cars are parked on the street at that point, they look to see if any feet are evident in front of the parked cars.
For the feet of a child standing in front of a parked auto, will often alert a smart motorist to an impending danger.
Oldsters, too, are not likely to squeal their tires by fast turns on city streets for show-off purposes!
Nor do they relish the noisy blasts of motorcycles and cars without mufflers in operation.

"Dr. Crane," you may ask, "how can we ever make thoughtless young drivers quickly acquire this 'Horse Sense' of the mature motorist?"
Well, it can be done in part in Sunday School, as well as at Driver Training high school classes.
"Forewarned is forearmed," runs a wise old adage.
So get down to the nitty gritty, meaning, dissect all the specific dangers involved.
And especially stress the juvenility or show-off efforts of teen-age boys who speed to make their girl friends think they are big he-men.
Explain that their boastful drinking of liquor, squealing their tires and city hot rodding are also evidences of an inferiority complex! And juvenile signs!
Or of frustrated emotions where they try to take out their anger by racing the motor abnormally.
Many irritated husbands also slam the door as they leave the house and zoom the car out of the garage, often killing their own toddler who came out to wave goodbye to daddy!
When making a driveway, too, if space permits, make it circular so you don't need to back your car but can keep going forward!
And send for my 200-point "Tests for Good Parents," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Saturday, Oct. 25, the 298th day of 1975. There are 67 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1936, Germany and Italy formed the Rome-Berlin Axis, pledging mutual assistance in case of war.
On this date: In 1701, a city charter was granted to Philadelphia.
In 1854, Britain's heroic Charge of the Light Brigade took place near Sevastopol, Russia during the Crimean War.
In 1874, Britain annexed the Fiji Islands.
In 1938, the Chinese government, fleeing Japanese invaders, established itself at Chungking.
In 1944, the second Battle of the Philippine Sea was being fought during the Pacific War.
In 1948, the Soviet Union vetoed a United Nations Security Council proposal for ending the Communist blockade of West Berlin.
Ten years ago: The failure of a new Agena rocket six minutes after liftoff from Cape Kennedy ended the first American attempt to join two vehicles in space.
Five years ago: Twenty-one militant blacks were held in Detroit after the shooting death of a policeman, triggering a nine-hour armed standoff between police and blacks.
One year ago: Foreign ministers of 19 Arab countries met at Rabat, Morocco and voted strong support for the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

Today's birthdays: Ex-King Michael of Romania is 54 years old. Entertainer Minnie Pearl is 63.
Thought for today: No person was ever honored for what he received. Honor has been the reward for what he gave — President Calvin Coolidge, 1872-1933.
Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the British occupying Boston fired cannons from the Boston Common and from ships in the harbor to celebrate the 15th anniversary of the coronation of King George III.

You have a tendency today to spread yourself too thin. It isn't likely things will receive their proper attention.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Keep your mind on the road today if you're going to be buzzing about in your car. Observe all traffic rules as well.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Yesterday you were prudent in your material affairs. The opposite is now true. Sit on your extravagant whims today.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
If things don't go your way on the first try today you're apt to give up. Victory is there, but it won't come easily.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Be your usual warm, outgoing self today. Don't let the mood of one you'll be associating with get you down.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
If you have a financial venture on the burners now, don't talk about it prematurely. It still isn't locked-down completely.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Unless you're extra alert today, 100 per cent of the time, a big opportunity will slip past unnoticed.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
You're apt to try something today, knowing full well from past experience your chances of succeeding are nil.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Be careful today if offered something for nothing from a person who doesn't usually treat you in such a magnanimous manner.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
In order to placate a member of your family today you may do something you shouldn't despite your better judgment.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You often let things go till the last minute and luckily get them in under the wire. However, today it would be folly to follow this practice.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Be careful today or your generous nature will be taken advantage of by one who doesn't give a hoot how much it may inconvenience you.

Advertise Or Be Forgotten

A high price might keep you from buying a new home.

But a low price shouldn't.

A Wausau Home costs thousands of dollars less than comparable homes. Because of the way we buy materials and the efficiency of our controlled building system.

For example, every Wausau Home is built with the finest grade kiln-dried lumber. 100% copper plumbing. Real ceramic tile walls and floors in the bath.

We buy the very best and we buy in quantity. Which lowers the price, not the quality.

And we build under the very best conditions, indoors, out of the weather.

Stop by for a close look at a Wausau Home. But don't let our low prices scare you. That shouldn't keep you from buying the new home you want.

Welcome Home.

The Doctor Says:

The proper treatment for high blood pressure

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB—I am in my early 60s and have high blood pressure, 150 over 100. I know that is too high. I started out at 200 over 130 and have been taking medicine three times a day for four months.

I would like to know if there is anything else to do. What about diet? I seem to be doing all right with my weight. I am not supposed to use salt. I have been told by friends my problem is worrying over this, so could you tell me if this is true?

DEAR READER—You are doing just great. I sounds to me as if that medicine is doing a lot for you, and you should continue to do what your doctor advises you.

Worry can increase blood pressure, and so can a lot of other things. High blood pressure isn't that simple.

In most people with pressures as high as yours before treatment, medicines will need to be continued thereafter, and you should never stop your medicine unless your doctor tells you to do so. For those who are even slightly overweight, I think it is also important to get rid of every excess pound of fat you don't need.

Most of the complications of high blood pressure are related to formation of fatty-cholesterol particles in the arteries that lead to heart attacks and strokes. So, it is a good idea to be on a diet that helps prevent these problems. That means a diet that eliminates or prevents obesity and is moderately low in fat, saturated fat and cholesterol. This is the same diet we recommend to prevent heart and vascular disease in the general population whether or not you have high blood pressure. It is just more important in your case. Restriction of salt is a good idea.

DEAR DR. LAMB—For the past year and a half I have been tested by my doctor for high blood sugar and high cholesterol. He says I have a tendency toward diabetes. I am on a 1500 calorie diet and have lost approximately 14 pounds, but the blood sugar doesn't seem to go down very much.

Why would this be described as hyperglycemia on my medical records if low blood sugar is hypoglycemia, and the end result would be diabetes.

DEAR READER—You are confused by the meaning of hyper and hypo as used in medicine. Hyper means an increased amount as in a hyper active child (over active) and hypo means less or low. Your problem is increased sugar in the blood, hence your doctor calls it a tendency towards diabetes, and it is correctly called hyperglycemia. If your blood sugar were low (just the opposite of your problem) he would have called it hypoglycemia. All cases of low blood sugar do not end up as diabetes. Only some do. It depends on what causes the low blood sugar.

Eliminating excess weight, if you have a high blood sugar, is a sound practice and is the first thing that should be done. Congratulations. I hope you are able to eliminate all the excess weight and that your blood sugar will then be more normal.
